The Montana Department of Transportation (MDT) has published an on-line set of resources, Montana Transportation and Land Use Resources for Growing Communities, which can be accessed at:

This site is a guide to off-the-shelf policies, practices, analytic methods, data sources, and software to assist communities coordinate transportation and land use planning. Successful transportation and land use applications are illustrated in communities throughout Montana and similar states by a series of examples and cross-cutting case studies.

Tools and examples can be accessed by category or a “How do I?” list of typical questions and situations faced by local planners as they seek to coordinate land use and transportation planning. “How do I…” topics cover a range of practical problems, such as:

• Funding transportation improvements;
• Assessing and mitigating the impacts of new development; and
• Coordinating plans with other agencies and stakeholders.

Resources for Growing Communities also links users to national and state-level transportation resources.

How Can these Resources Help Me?

Through explanations, examples, and links to other resources, Resources for Growing Communities illustrates how other local communities have approached transportation and land use issues faced by small, growing cities and counties. Whether you are looking for general ideas on how to begin approaching transportation and land use coordination, or specific analysis and policy ideas, this set of resources should be your first stop.
How Were the On-Line Resources Developed?

This site is the result of 18 months of research into best and promising practices in local land use and transportation planning that sought to identify current resources and strategies useful in small and growing communities. The effort was advised by local planners and policy specialists. The research focused on critical problems of:

- Development and extension of local street networks;
- Local transportation system financing;
- Assessment of development impacts of local and state roads; and
- Directions for multimodal and transit development.
